

TALK DANCE (A ballet).

(Suggested: Three players on a stage in dance costume. Each choosing a line as they move through different postures and body relationships. They avoid eye and body contact until the end).

Talking about talk is not important

Talk is not important as it has been

Talk is not important as you think it is

Talk is not important and always will be so

    Talking about talk is not important

Talking about talk is not important as it once was

Talking about talk is not important as you think it is

Talking about talk is not important and always will be so

    Talking about talking is not important

Talking about talking is not important as it has been

Talking about talking is not important as you think it is

Talking about talking is not important and always will be so

    Thinking about talking about talking is not important

Thinking about talking about talking is not important as it has been

Thinking about talking about talking is not important as you think it is

Thinking about talking about talking is not important and always will be so

Talking about thinking about talking about talking is not important

Thinking about talking about thinking about talking about thinking

Is not important as you think it has been as it once was and always will be so

Talking about talk is not important

Talking about dancing is

(To be continued)*

- Dancers improvise.

*****